

What is your Organizational Theory of Change?

Partnership for Working Families

Vibrant feminist racial justice centered and environmentally harmonious and economically just metropolitan regions. Build the power of low income communities of color through strengthening civic and community organizations in permanent coalitions which take power in cities and build state power, who campaign and fight corporate interests.

350.org

Working to guarantee a safe, livable, climate and equitable future for everyone. In the U.S. looking to play our role in building a multiracial/cross class movement to force a Just Transition by holding the fossil fuels accountable towards an equitable future powered by 100% renewable energy. Part of a broader multi-sector systemic package like Green New Deal distributed. People power distributed to change what's physically possible. Shared purpose, shared demands, shared narrative and distributed scale.

Political Research Associates

Polyamorous Research Organization: in search of just, inclusive, feminist, multiracial democracy
Blocking right wing and authoritarian movements, creating the space to build just democracy. Research and strategy as a catalyst for more effective organizing.

Just Associates (JASS)

Voice, visible, collective power on front lines of the crises.
Women leadership and feminist perspective in broad based deeply democratic movements for freedom of expression, safety and live in connection with each other and the planet.

How: Leadership, political-education cross movement and cross regional - louder, safer, understanding and security, self defense.

Jobs with Justice

We are in search of power for working people, in a just and dignified economy.

How it happens is new forms of Bargaining. People closest to the problem negotiate with real decision makers for wins that are enforceable and build long term power.

Native Organizers Alliance

Organizing clusters of Native organizing. Leadership in key centers of Indian Country for transformational social change and realization of sovereignty. Tribal, spiritual, traditional grassroots. Grassroots are the heart and soul of social change if organized strategies rooted in traditional indigenous knowledge.

Asian Pacific Environmental Network

In search of: feminist regenerative economy that includes governance, solutions and authenticity.

In search of all people who have the right to a clean and healthy and just environment where they live, work, play and pray.

Leadership of Asian American immigrants and refugees. Just Transition and power building through:

1. Base building and leadership development
2. Electoral Organizing
3. Policy work at many levels
4. Alliance building

Family Values at Work

Women at the frontlines of crises.

Collective self defense.

In search of: transforming our network.

Leadership and bolder vision connected; movement.

Get with WOC + QTPOC led networks to imagine and build our practice different

Labor Network for Sustainability

Labor movement in the U.S. leading force in confronting the climate crisis
Bottom up organizing within labor, education of greens and others about labor.

Alliance for Just Society

In search of: An interrogation, and update of re-grounding in community organizing practice. A robust notion of “public” and return of resources and power to people - defined by our communities. Training education, campaigns, action, idea leadership to advance, evolve the craft of community organizing and to create an individual and actual shift of public good/commons.

Main Street Alliance

To undermine the right wing biz industrial complex and create a powerful small constituency that’s aligned with our movements. Outreach. Leadership Development. Organizing. Storytelling. Campaigning.

Social Transformation Project

The collective to realize systemic change and shape the future. New forms of strategic practices and scaffolding for collaborative leadership, long term thinking and aligned action

Win Without War

In search of a more peaceful, progressive foreign policy for the United States.
By: supporting, leading and enabling creative campaigning. Shattering the artificial domestic foreign divide. Creating political space and connections for significant shifts.

